Routes: the way to "Integration" is a project part-financed by the European Commission through the INTI initiative, funded by the DG Justice, Freedom and Security and endorsed by the European Year of Intercultural Dialogue. This exhibition is also sponsored by the Region of Bruxelles Capitale. After two years of work, the project partners wish to share the main results of a joint effort that aims at improving the local governance of integration policies of citizens across Europe, regardless of their origin, in line with the fundamental rights of man and the founding principles of the European Union.

Uniqueness and diversity make the strength of our society. At the end of the day, words such as "third-country nationals", "integration", "intercultural dialogue" mean actual interaction of individuals and their experience of life in our cities, schools, work and public places. This exhibition showcases diverse and positive examples that embody such interactions as recorded by professional photographers, practitioners, migrants and keen observers. All such representations of integration processes become alive as you read and look at the words, situations and symbols displayed in this venue.
